

Healthcare Construction & Operations News (HC&O News) often publishes feature articles written by industry experts. All feature articles should be exclusive to HC&O News. We will reprint some features on a case-by-case basis.

Editorial features deal primarily with the design, construction, maintenance and operations of healthcare facilities. Articles should be concise and informative, presenting a solution to a problem without being company- or product-specific.

We especially appreciate articles that identify and respond to trends, report industry news or outline case histories that can help facility managers cope with a changing environment and improve day-to-day operations.
